

Preface

VOLUME FIFTEEN of Life and Learning presents a selection of papers from UFL's 2005 conference. We are deeply grateful to Dean Bernard Dobranski for providing UFL with another opportunity to use the splendid facilities of the Ave Maria Law School in Ann Arbor, Michigan for our conference. Special thanks are due to UFL President Richard Myers for hosting this meeting. We would also like to express our sincere gratitude to Sharon Sansoterra and Meg Castro, who assisted in the arrangements there with such tremendous hospitality and efficiency.

Prof. Keith Cassidy of the University of Guelph, who has served again this year as UFL's Program Chair, arranged a wonderful program, and we owe him many thanks. We would also like to express our grateful appreciation to Our Sunday Visitor Institute for a special grant in support of the 2005 UFL Conference and to all the benefactors of UFL who have made possible its annual meetings as well as the publication of its newsletter and of its annual volume of proceedings. Without their generous contributions this organization would not be able to continue its work.

The papers in this volume are grouped under six headings, beginning with the essays on international law (Wilkins & Reynolds, Keown, Safranek). In the section on rhetoric and argument, three UFL members (Voth, Stith, King) reflect on the significance of the ways in which the life issues are framed in public discourse. Four of this year's papers consider questions in the area of medicine and nursing (Klaus, Fehring, Echlin, O'Connell), while another four take up the life-issues from an ecclesial perspective (Conley, Fastiggi, Gardiner, Fedoryka). A number of our contributors treat philosophical and theological problems (Forsythe, Mathie, Latkovic, Reimers, Conley). Finally, a number of UFL's scholars comment on contemporary culture and the life issues (Mathie, Gilroy, Nyikos, Koloze, Krause, Porter, Yuengert & Fetzer).

Finally, I want to offer special thanks to Prof. Carol Nevins Abromaitis (Loyola College of Maryland) and to Prof. Jacqueline Nolan-Haley (Fordham University Law School), for their invaluable help again this year in the reviewing the papers submitted for this volume. And I am grateful to Brendan Palla, my graduate assistant at Fordham, for his fine proof-reading eye.

Electronic versions of these papers and many of those delivered at previous UFL conferences are available on our web site at www.ufl.org.
